1. [redacted] there were 2,200 Chinese Communist troops in the Shihp'u (N 29-12, E 121-56) area, 700 troops on T'ant'oushan (N 29-10, E 122-02), 600 troops at Kaot'angtao (N 29-08, E 121-50), and 700 troops at Nant'ien (N 29-08, E 121-56). Most of the troops in Shihp'u arrived [redacted] and wore black uniforms.
2. [redacted] there were many tents in and around Tinghai (N 30-02, E 122-06). [redacted] the troops quartered in them were marines who had arrived at the end of July with "many guns." The troops originally stationed in Tinghai were still there in mid-October.
3. [redacted]
4. Troops were stationed in the Holinssu (7729/2651/1408) Temple near Tach'iao (N 29-48, E 121-22). Fenghua (N 29-40, E 121-24), Chenghsien (N 29-36, E 120-48), and Hsinchang (N 29-30, E 120-54) each had its own militia force which stood a 24-hour sentry duty.
5. Wounded soldiers brought by military vehicles from the south were stationed at Kuoch'ing (0948/3237) Temple, T'ient'ai (N 29-08, E 121-02). Civilians were prohibited from visiting the temple.
6. [redacted] several ten-wheeled military vehicles [redacted] were on the streets of Wenchou (N 28-02, E 120-40).<sup>4</sup> Each such vehicle was equipped with two coal stoves, one on each side of the driver's cab.

7. In the vicinity of Shangwangp'u (0006/2598/3184) there were barracks and a watch post which had telephone contact with troops at Hengt'angt'ou (N 27-44, E 120-42).
8. All the troops stationed at Juian (N 27-48, E 120-38) had been transferred outside the city or to the coast nearby. Juian citizens had been ordered to build air-raid shelters.<sup>5</sup>

9. Red road marks were visible on all routes along the Chekiang coast.

10. [ ] a fan-shaped, mirror-like object was rotating on top of a pole at the cement works on the summit of Laoshushan, near Meitoushoch'eng (approximately N 27-50, E 120-46). The sound of a motor from this structure or a nearby camp was audible day and night. Four antiaircraft guns, a number of coastal defense guns, and a searchlight were also on Laoshushan.<sup>6</sup> 25X1

11. [ ] Tinghai Airfield was not operational.<sup>7</sup> 25X1

12. An airfield was under construction at Taishan.<sup>8</sup>

13. [ ] an airfield was under construction at Huangyen (N 28-40, E 121-16).<sup>9</sup> 25X1

1. [ ] Comment. These troops were probably marines attached to the 2 (sic) Field Army, commanded by LIN Piao. 25X1

[ ] Comment. The uniform of the Chinese Communist naval soldier or "marine" is a brownish-green color; black is the usual color of Chinese Communist police uniforms. Although Shihp'u is a minor naval base and naval infantry may well be stationed there, this report lacks sufficient detail to indicate definitely the presence of such troops. 25X1

[ ] Comments 25X1

5. [ ] Chinese Communist authorities had ordered civilians in Hangchow, Ningpo, Choushan, and Tz'uch'i to dig shelters and participate in air raid drills. 25X1

6. [ ] Comment. This is probably a radar antenna. 25X1

[ ] Comments 25X1

7. [ ] Tinghai's runway was serviceable but [ ] there were no aircraft at the field. 25X1
